

MARY GRIFFIN

Mary Griffin displays the vocal prowess, attitude and range of a true ingénue. (Billboard Magazine) With a powerfully unique voice and a definitive sound, Mary Griffin consistently delivers soul stirring performances that captivate audiences around the world. Using her past as a springboard, Mary channels memories into melodies that are proud and strong. Her rich melodic sound and exciting performance style are rooted in the story of a pastor's daughter with a passion for singing good music. With Curb Records, Mary began singing for Movie soundtracks and was even featured in the movie Studio 54 where she portrayed the artist Amii Stewart and sang "Knock on Wood" for the soundtrack. She performed "Can't Take My Eyes Off of You" with Frankie Valli for the closing credits of Conspiracy Theory. Mary also sang "I Wanna Get Back With You" written by Diane Warren, for the movie Driven starring Sylvester Stallone and Burt Reynolds. Other notable movies that feature Mary's voice include: a duet with Benny Mardones, Coyote Ugly and Ballistic X vs Sever where she sang the end credit song "Anytime".

After returning from Europe promoting and shooting the video for "Ain't No Living Without You" by Louis Biancaniello and Sam Waters from Color Me Bad, she released "I Surrender" which was then covered by Celine Dion. "I Surrender" was an instant success with Celine, and further drove Mary's writing and singing out front with her recording of the song on her album "Purified", released in 2002. In August 2011 Mary recorded the theme song "Speed" with producer Stephen Emmer, along with 2 other songs for the Cirque du Soleil show "Holiday on Ice". Mary recently wrote "City of Love" for "The Horn Dogz" of Paris, and covered Aretha Franklin's "Rock Steady" and performed in a video for the project.

She finished touring with George Clinton & Patti Labelle in 2015, two people who brought her exciting memories as well as lessons in music, love, and living. Mary is now creating new projects under her own label, Mahogany Entertainment, LLC. She released her first Gospel album "For Such A Time As This" in September of 2016, and her first in a series of Christmas Albums "Mary's Christmas, Vol 1" in December 2017. Mary sang two tracks on the "Home Ground" compilation CD by Stephen Emmer, in Europe, released in June, 2017, which, won the 2018 Humanitarian Gold Medal at the Global Music Awards. Her third album "Rebuild" was released in August of 2018 and 2019 Mary charted #1 on TraxSource in Europe with a remix of "My Love Can Take You Higher" and recorded a duet with Taj Mahal on The BB King Band Tribute album "The Soul of a King". In 2020 Mary is opening a Vocal Performance Academy in Houston, TX bringing together aspiring artists, and a solid team of professional artists.
